An intimate and candid look inside the world's most successful rugby team

For over a century, the All Blacks have been the most dominant force in rugby. With a winning percentage of over 80%, they are the most successful international sports team in history.

But what is it like to be an All Black? What does it take to be part of the most successful team in the world?

In Heroics and Heartbreak, New Zealand Herald journalist Gregor Paul provides an intimate and candid look inside the world of the All Blacks. He spent twelve months with the team, following them on tour and behind the scenes, to get an unprecedented insight into what makes them so successful.

Paul was given exclusive access to the All Blacks' inner sanctum, and he paints a vivid picture of the team's culture, values, and beliefs. He reveals the secrets of their success, and he also explores the challenges they face, both on and off the field.

Heroics and Heartbreak is a fascinating and revealing look inside the world of the All Blacks. It is a must-read for any fan of rugby, and it is also a valuable resource for anyone interested in leadership, teamwork, and success.
